Jewish Agency For Israel, Major Beneficiary Of U.J.A., Elects Directors To Control Funds, Drops Aid To Political Parties In Israel

The Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., has named a board of directors and chairman to handle the distribution of funds raised by its financial arm, the United Jewish Appeal, for humanitarian work in Israel. The move was a further implementation of a new method of allocating American Jewish funds for resettlement and rehabilitation programs among newcomers in Israel. The details of the Agency's revised procedure were outlined at a press conference at its offices, 515 Park Avenue, in New York.

The conference was conducted by Dewey D. Stone, of Brockton, Mass., who was elected head of the Agency's board of directors; and Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the Jewish Agency for Israel in Jerusalem, a separate body, says the New York Times. Dr. Goldmann said that the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., directed by its new board, had entered into an agreement with the Jewish Agency in Jerusalem, which will be "sole agent for the implementation of the projects supported by the American corporation."

He added that an American representative would be appointed in the near future to supervise the budget allocations in Israel.

James P. Warburg, retired banker and writer on international affairs, has charged twice in the last several months that large sums of money raised by the United Jewish Appeal have been used for political purposes in Israel. On one occasion, Mr. Warburg scored the Appeal's "high-handed procedure" in refusing to segregate funds contributed for relief or for cultural purposes from funds that went directly or indirectly into the Israeli Treasury.

Leaders of the United Jewish Appeal, in answer, asserted that the Appeal was not "a political organization" nor was it involved in Israel's domestic or foreign policies. Senator Jacob K. Javits, of New York, also defended the Appeal as an organization devoted to "great humanitarian work."

Reached by telephone, Mr. Warburg told the New York Times, that "in the absence of any United Jewish Appeal statement, I prefer not to comment."

Two Israeli political leaders, Joseph Serlin, chairman of the General Zionist party in Israel, and Moshe Kol, chairman of the Israeli Progressive party, had called the charges "unfounded accusations."

It is expected that the Israeli political parties, who carry out their own welfare projects, will either engage in independent fund-raising campaign in America or apply for allocations to Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds. The Jewish Agency's allocations to these groups will terminate at the end of this year. Allocations to the American Zionist Council will be discontinued next March 31.

Through the United Israel Appeal, the Jewish Agency for Israel has been the major beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal since 1939. Up to now the money has been transmitted directly to the international Jewish Agency for Israel in Jerusalem. Under the new plan, the allocation of these funds will now be determined by the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., an American philanthropic organization.

Both Mr. Stone and Dr. Goldmann hailed the new plan as "a significant step toward stimulating active participation of American Jewish community leaders in the spending as well as the raising of funds by the United Jewish Appeal for the resettlement and rehabilitation program in Israel."

In addition to Mr. Stone, the officers of the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., include Mrs. Rose L. Halprin, of New York, and Joseph Meyerhoff, of Baltimore, vice chairmen; Max M. Fisher, of Detroit; and Abraham Goodman, of New York; treasurers; and Louis Segal, of New York, secretary. All are directors.

The other directors are Morris W. Berinstein, Dr. Israel Goldstein, Dr. Goldmann, Joseph M. Mazer, Dr. Emanuel Neumann, Rabbi Mordecai Kirschblum, and Jack D. Weiler, all of New York; Rabbi Isidore Breslau, of Washington; Samuel H. Daroff, of Philadelphia; Melvin Dubinsky, of St. Louis; Dr. Dov Joseph, of Jerusalem; Philip M. Klutznick, of Chicago; Albert A. Levin, of Cleveland; Philip Stollman, of Detroit; and Ralph Wechsler, of Newark.

A major aspect of the change will be the Agency's transfer of Zionist activities in the U.S. to the American Zionist Council, the coordinating agency through which all Zionist groups conduct their public relations and educational activities, says the New York Times. Another point is the discontinuance of allocations to the philanthropic funds of Zionist or political groups in Israel. These allocations amounted to about $2,000,000 annually, or less than two per cent of the agency's total budget, Dr. Goldmann explained.

Dr. Goldmann, and Mr. Stone pointed out that under the new set-up, the Jewish Agency for Israel, Inc., will be a "purely American philanthropic body, as distinguished from the international Jewish Agency which has headquarters in Jerusalem." The American group will have a board of directors of twenty-one, including fourteen leaders in Jewish community fund-raising and seven representatives of Zionist groups.

The Agency's new board, Mr. Stone and Dr. Goldmann announced, will each year "determine its own budget for specific immigration, absorption and resettlement activities which it wishes to support." All funds, they stressed, "will be allocated by the Jewish Agency, Inc., for clearly designated philanthropic purposes and their use will be strictly supervised by an American in Jerusalem."

Mr. Stone and Mr. Goldmann, at this press conference, declared that the allocations made by the Jewish Agency to "constructive projects set up by Zionist groups in Israel were tax-exempt activities such as providing homes and employment for needy persons and providing educational, religious and cultural programs for the newcomers."

Addressing the American Zionist Council's annual two-way meeting at 515 Park Avenue, in New York, Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Zionist Organization, defended the Zionist movement against criticism that, basically, its organization was "political." Dr. Goldmann agreed that the phrase was probably justified prior to the establishment of Israel as a nation twelve years ago. Since then, he noted, Israel has taken over the exclusive conduct of its foreign policy.

Apparently replying to criticism expressed by James P. Warburg, former banker and writer, to the effect that U. J. A. funds go to politics in Israel, Dr. Goldmann said that Zionist groups adopted resolutions "in critical moments" to support Israel's demands, says the New York Times. He pointed out that other Jewish groups did likewise "in a democratic effort to clarify public opinion."

The Zionist leader declared that "mythological terminology" surrounding the situation was creating havoc. He said that "if Zionists want to influence Jewish life they are accused of the will to dominate — if others with the same desire do it, they only want to serve."

Recently, James P. Warburg renewed his attack on United Jewish Appeal's fund-distributing policies, asserting that much of the money raised was diverted to other than charitable purposes, says the New York Times. The former banker, who is a writer on international affairs, contended that "a substantial portion" of the $1,000,000,000 raised in America by the Appeal in the last twelve years had been used for political purposes, referring to allocations for Zionist and Israeli activities.

In an address to the Jewish Graduate Society at Columbia University he called attention to reports in Jewish periodicals in America and in Israel that negotiations were going on concerning a termination of funds to Israeli political parties by the Jewish Agency for Israel, the chief beneficiary of the United Jewish Appeal.

"The mere fact that these negotiations have apparently been going on in the utmost secrecy constitutes an admission that the U.J.A.'s activities have not been, as alleged, 'entirely non-political,'" Mr. Warburg said.

"What remains as yet undisclosed is the extent to which the U.J.A.'s apparent but unannounced change of attitude has been caused by a demand on the part of the United States Internal Revenue Service rather than by a long overdue recognition of the elementary democratic rights of the people whose generosity has supported the organization."

Mr. Warburg's first attack on the United Jewish Appeal last December was denounced by William Rosenwald, former general chairman of the Appeal, and by Senator Jacob K. Javits, of New York. Mr. Rosenwald said that the Appeal was not "a political organization" and was not involved in Israel's domestic or foreign policies.

Dr. Nahum Goldmann, chairman of the Jewish Agency, said at a recent press conference for Yiddish dailies that the Agency's party allocations were transmitted "directly to constructive enterprises set up by the parties in Israel. These enterprises are engaged solely in tax-exempt activities such as providing homes and employment for needy persons,

Envoy Bemoans Lost Overseas Sources Of Jewish Culture

Peace between Israel and her Arab neighbors was described by an Israeli diplomat as "historically inevitable." Avraham Harman, Israel's representative to the United States, conceded in an address that the Arab states still considered themselves to be at war with Israel but he asserted that Israel's permanence was now being "tacitly accepted in several Arab countries."

"There is only one road to peace in the Middle East," Mr. Harman said, "and that is through direct discussion and negotiation. For our part, we shall persevere in this direction."

The ambassador spoke at the annual meeting of the American Zionist Council, information arm of the Zionist movement in the U.S., says the New York Times. The session was held in the Hadassah Building, 65 East Fifty-second Street, New York.

Turning to the Zionist movement, Mr. Harman warned that if it lost its "historical vision," it would become less a movement than a group of organizations. He deplored what he termed a failure to take adequately into account the consequences of the loss of "thirty thousand Jewish communities in Central and Eastern Europe. This great heart that once pumped blood into the whole of Jewry has ceased to beat," he said.

Another miscalculation common to the present generation of Jews, according to Mr. Harman, is the "facile idea that if you have an independent Jewish state, it will automatically radiate Jewish lightning and influence." On the contrary, he continued, the loss of the Eastern and Central European wellsprings of Jewish culture had thrown the Jews of Israel and of the world upon their own resources. "You must produce the necessary leadership homegrown or you won't have it," he observed.

Cancer Research Scientist Was Great Authority In Pathology

Dr. Leo Loeb, cancer research scientist and Professor Emeritus of Pathology at Washington University, died at St. Louis, Missouri, at his home. His age was 90 years. Dr. Loeb was one of the outstanding authorities in the field of pathology, which is the science of the nature, causes and development of disease. Many of his main contributions in more than half a century of research were in the fight against cancer, says the New York Times. He also was a pioneer in tissue culture, the growing of cells outside the body.

A native of Mayen, in Germany's Rhineland, he studied natural science and medicine at the Universities of Heidelberg, Berlin and Freiburg before receiving his M.D. in 1897 at the University of Zurich in Switzerland. He followed his brother Jacques, who was a physiologist, to Chicago and set up practice as a physician.

Dr. Leo Loeb even then was drawn more toward experimental medicine than toward medical practice. He did his first cancer research on small mammals in a rented room in the back of a drug store. Soon he gave up his practice, took a teaching post and concentrated on research.

While at the University of Pennsylvania, where he taught experimental pathology from 1904 to 1910, Dr. Loeb announced the discovery of a hereditary factor in breast cancer in mice.

In 1912, while director of the department of pathology at the Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital in St. Louis, Dr. Loeb proposed the intravenous injection of a colloidal copper solution for cancer treatment, says the New York Times. He also demonstrated the importance of sex hormones in the production of cancer.

He joined the staff of Washington University in 1915 and was head of its department of pathology from 1924 until he retired in 1937 with the emeritus title. Dr. Loeb formulated the complete mechanism of the sex cycle of mammals and found the cause of the formation of the placenta, which nourishes the embryo in mammals.

In 1936 he received the John Phillips Memorial Medal awarded annually by the American College of Physicians to an outstanding physician. In 1951 the American Medical Association honored Dr. Loeb by devoting an issue of its Archives of Pathology to him and his work. The journal contained a list of 400 of his writings.

Dr. Loeb was a former president of the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists and of the Society of Cancer Research. He was a member of the National Academy of Sciences and of the American Philosophical Society.

He was an author of "The Biological Basis of Individuality" (1945), in which he discussed the existence of substances that gene-

TORONTO MARRIAGES

KREIDSTEIN-ALTER

The marriage of Miss Carolyn Alter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Alter, 217 Chaplin Crescent, to Irving Kreidstein, son of Mr. and Mrs. Saul Kreidstein, 109 Delaware Avenue, was solemnized on Sunday, March 20, at half-past five o'clock, in Adath Israel Synagogue. Rabbi Erwin Schild and Rabbi A. L. Fineberg officiated, assisted by Cantor M. Nixon. The bride was given in marriage by her parents. She wore a gown of white peau de soie. Crystals, beads, and pearl-beads encrusted the small white rosettes of peau de soie which decorated the wide oval neckline. The panel front continued into two large bustles in the back, caught with roses above the chapel train. Her fingertip white illusion veil was attached to a crown of pearl-beads and rhinestones; and she carried white hyacinths and a white orchid. Miss Barbara White was maid of honour. She wore a pale pink, organza gown which had a scooped neckline; and a harem skirt; and had a pink head-band with tiny bows. Her flowers were pink roses and mauve carnations. Attendants were Misses Beverley Rozender, Myrna Ross, Ellen Wynston, and Mrs. Allan Goldman, sister of the groom. Each wore a gown similar to that of the maid of honour; and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carnations. The junior bridesmaid was Miss Cheryl Alter, niece of the bride. She wore a pale pink, organza and net dress, with pink rosebuds; and carried a bouquet of pink roses. Allan Goldman, brother-in-law of the groom, was best man. The ushers were: Allan Alter, brother of the bride; Max Lieberman, Saul Izenberg, Ralph Eisen, Ernest Goodman, and Lee Wahxler. Howard Alter, nephew of the bride, was the ring-bearer. The altar and canopy were decorated with bouquets and standards of white chrysanthemums, pink gladioli, and white carnations. A dinner and reception followed in the Synagogue. Mrs. Alter, mother of the bride, wore a long, ice-blue, peau de soie gown; cut with a scooped neckline, and sheath skirt which had a pattern of beaded crystals along the front. Her hat matched her gown; and she had a wristlet of mauve orchids. Mrs. Kreidstein, mother of the groom, wore a long, mauve, silk organza gown, with a scooped neckline; fitted bodice; and a sheath skirt. She had a blue hat; and a mauve orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Irving Kreidstein spent their wedding trip in Acapulco, Mexico. The bride travelled in a sky-blue, tweed suit. They will reside at 217 Chaplin Crescent. Here for the occasion were: Mr. and Mrs. Irving Schor, of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Mr. and Mrs. Barney Kosoff of Detroit, Mich.; Leon Spiegler, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Misses Ronna and Cynthia Merdek, of Portland, Maine; and Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hyman, of Oshawa, Ont.

GOLDBLATT-TREFLER

The marriage of Miss Marian Trefler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trefler, 599 Lawrence Avenue West, to Marvin Bernard Goldblatt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack H. Goldblatt, of Portland, Maine, was solemnized at Adath Israel Synagogue, on Saturday, March 5, at half-past seven o'clock, by Rabbi Erwin Schild, assisted by Cantor Murray Nixon and Cantor M. Koenigsberg. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white peau de faille, styled with a fitted bodice appliqued in Guipure lace; with the scooped neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves scattered with seed-pearl-beads. The full skirt, which was draped to the back and caught at the sides with two large roses and matching lace appliques, extended to a chapel train. Her fingertip veil was held by a crown of pearl-beads, tipped with crystal-beads; and she carried a cascade bouquet of hyacinths and orchids. Mrs. Jerry Ross, sister of the bride, as matron of honour, wore a gown of midnight blue Chantilly lace, with short sleeves and a broad neckline coming to a V in the back. Mrs. Lawrence H. Rittenberg, as bridesmaid, wore a sleeveless gown of grey lace over pink taffeta, with a bell-shaped skirt. They had jewelled tiaras, and carried cascades of pink and blue roses and carnations. Aml Trefler, niece of the bride, as junior bridesmaid; and the flower girls: Bonnie Ross and Carrie Penner; nieces of the bride; and Cherrie Miller, niece of the groom, wore identical gowns of pale blue taffeta, styled with full skirts topped by cummerbunds, tied in bows at the back. Their headdresses were of white velvet; and they carried nosegays of roses and chrysanthemums. The best man was J. Kurt Schiller; and the ushers were: Harry Trefler, brother of the bride; Martin Trefler, cousin of the bride; Alan Zuker, cousin of the groom; Jerry Ross, Bernard Penner, brothers-in-law of the bride; Andre Goldberg, Samuel Wasserman, Leo Drukmaler, and Moe Miller, brother-in-law of the groom. Alan Ross, Martin Ross and Michael Penner, nephews of the bride, acted as junior ushers; and Jules Trefler, nephew of the bride, was ring-bearer. The Synagogue was decorated with standards of white gladioli and greenery. Mrs. Trefler, mother of the bride, wore a sheath gown of blue Chantilly lace; with a matching satin cummerbund, extending to fly-away panels at the back. She had a matching hat and an orchid corsage. Mrs. Goldblatt, wore a gown of sea-foam green lace over satin, styled with three-quarter sleeves and an Empire waistline. She had a small, matching hat and an orchid corsage. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Trefler spent their honeymoon at the Nevele Country Club, in Ellenville, N.Y. For travelling, the bride wore a suit of beige mohair with matching accessories; and an orchid corsage. They have taken up residence at 599 Lawrence Avenue West. Here for the wedding are: Mr. and Mrs. H. Balsom, H. Thier, and P. Leonard; all of Buffalo, N.Y.; and Mrs. Jennie Weinstein, of Montreal, Que.

MADE WITHOUT MEAT OR ANY MEAT INGREDIENT WHATSOEVER

CLASS IN COOKERY

CHEESE CAKE

Crust

fifteen graham wafers
one-half teaspoon cinnamon
one tablespoon sugar
one-quarter pound butter

Roll the wafers to crush them and place in a bowl together with the other ingredients. Mix together until the mixture is as fine as sand.

Filling

one pound cream cheese
two eggs
one teaspoon cereal cream
one-half cup sugar
one teaspoon vanilla

Mash the cheese in a mixing bowl, with a wooden spoon. Add the sugar and cream. Beat eggs in separate bowl, and pour into the cream cheese. Add the vanilla. Grease a medium-sized baking dish very lightly with butter. Sprinkle the wafer mixture in the dish, and press down firmly to the bottom. Pour the filling over this. Pre-heat the oven to 375 degrees and set the cheese cake in the oven for fifteen minutes.

Topping

one pint sour cream
two tablespoons icing sugar
one-quarter teaspoon vanilla

Take the cake out of the oven. Mix the ingredients together in a bowl and pour the mixture on top of the cheese cake. Increase the heat to 425 degrees. Put the cake back in the oven on the highest rack, for five minutes. Remove the cake and let it stand until cool. Then place in the refrigerator, and slice when ready to serve.

Mrs. E. Ecker,
25 Gorman Park Road, Toronto.

STRUDEL

two cups of flour
one-third cup oil
three-quarters cup warm water
pinch of salt
four teaspoons powdered sugar

Place flour on board or in deep bowl, and make a well. Add salt, oil, and powdered sugar. Add three-quarters cup warm water, and keep patting until the dough becomes a ball. Add a little flour and keep slapping for fifteen minutes until the dough is smooth. Place dough in a slightly greased bowl and cover well with a clean cloth. Let this stand for one hour. The longer it stays the easier it will be to stretch. Spread a tablecloth on the table; sprinkle it all over with flour. Divide dough in two parts and sprinkle with flour. Roll dough a little and cover with the ends of tablecloth for ten minutes. Start rolling again and stretching the dough until it becomes as thin as tissue paper.

Filling

one pound crushed walnuts
two cups of sugar
one cup wine
one pound white sultana raisins
two cups bread crumbs
two lemons, juice and rind
two pounds Turkish Delight
one jar of Maraschino cherries (sixteen ounces)

In a large bowl place all ingredients except the Turkish Delight. Make certain that the mixture is moist. When the dough is stretched out, line up the filling along the table at one end. Sprinkle the dough sheet with a little oil and icing sugar. Cut the Turkish Delight into half-inch pieces and place on top of filling. Take an end of the tablecloth and roll up the dough. Then cut it in lengths according to the size of the baking pan. Bake at 300 to 325 degrees for twenty minutes. Cut into pieces when required. Set in the refrigerator well-covered; strudel will keep for a long time.

The Major Challenge Of The Future Of Jewish Life Is Political

The American Jewish community finds itself "untrained and inadequately equipped" to cope with swiftly moving events that affect the security of Jews in the United States and the future of world Jewry, according to Isaac Toubin, executive director of the American Jewish Congress. In a series of talks in Pittsburgh, Pa.; Kansas City, Missouri; and other Jewish communities in the mid-West, Mr. Toubin declared:

"At a moment in history when the world is experiencing an enormous racial, religious, and political revolution, one that is having a profound influence on the status of all peoples, including the Jews, American Jewry possesses neither the necessary institutions nor the required instruments.

"As a result, we are unable to meet the challenge posed by the historic changes through which we are now living. Instead of acting imaginatively and affirmatively to shape the future, we do little more than react to events after they have occurred. Underlying the immaturity of the American Jewish community," he continued, "is the dichotomy which exists between philanthropy and thinking in American Jewish leadership and organized effort. Philanthropic effort monopolizes Jewish leadership. It is essential that this leadership be trained to develop the same maturity and sophistication about the political issues that affect Jewish life that is now directed toward meeting Jewish welfare needs at home and abroad."

The American Jewish Congress leader listed three major issues which he said were of "critical significance" to the future of the Jewish people:

1. Anti-Semitic sentiment is virulent, albeit latent, in almost every part of the world and must be dealt with on a global basis. Local efforts and the fragmented activities of various national or international bodies cannot begin to deal with a problem of this scope and danger if they continue to be uncoordinated and without common planning, Mr. Toubin said, adding:

"The need to develop affirmative channels for a meaningful Jewish-Christian relationship is clear. If, indeed, anti-Semitism is a Christian problem, it is necessary to intensify and regularize the relationship between Jewish representative bodies and Christian church groups. Sporadic, independent representations by a variety of Jewish organizations, secular and religious, will neither impress nor energize Christian church leaders to take those steps essential to a re-interpretation of the Christian's understanding of the Jewish people."

2. Newly emerging nations, races, cultures, and religions, clamoring for their rightful place in human society, challenge the Jewish community to make a historic adjustment in terms of future world relationships.

"For almost 2,000 years the Jewish people has been encysted culturally and politically in the white-Western-Christian world," Mr. Toubin declared. "Now the colored peoples of Africa, Asia, and our own United States are coming into their own, posing a problem of white-colored relationships that deeply affects the Jew.

"This is no longer a problem limited to equality for the Negro in America. It touches on the status of the Jewish communities in the Mediterranean area and has a particular bearing on the relationship between Israel and the Negro states of Africa. The role of the Jew in America in the struggle for civil rights will thus exert a profound influence on the attitude of colored peoples in Africa and Asia toward the State of Israel."

3. The continuing Arab effort to make American Jews second-class citizens has apparently won the near-involvement of official U.S. Government agencies, which seem to find it expedient to subordinate the privileges of citizenship to an illusory diplomatic advantage vis-a-vis the Arab states.

"This is one of the earliest consequences of the world political revolution that is affecting our status as Americans and as Jews," Mr. Toubin declared. It will be a formidable task for American Jewry to educate American public opinion to the evils of this policy and to persuade government officials that it must be abandoned.

"This new and crucial set of tasks," he said, "requires both sophistication on the part of American Jewish leadership and the will to develop those representative instrumentalities of a national and international character that can deal with them. We must now enter a third major phase of American Jewish history. The years 1800-1930 might be described as the era of ideology, a period during which the ideas that were to shape the development of American Jewry were the substance of Jewish life. The next period roughly from 1930 to the present, might be identified as the era of philanthropy, the decades in which the major challenges were rescue, rehabilitation, and laying the physical foundation for a Jewish State.

"While some aspects of these earlier stages of Jewish life will remain with us, the major challenge of the future is a political one. At stake are not only the status, the privileges, and the continued growth of American Jewry but also the future of all that we have built in Israel and the security of Jewish communities throughout the world."

supporting educational and cultural activities," he added.

Another source indicated that the allocations of these funds to the political parties was about $2,000,000 a year, less than one per cent of the Agency's annual budget. These sums, the source added, are given to prevent separate campaigns by the political parties in the U.S. for humanitarian programs for their constituents, says the New York Times.

Raw fruit should be washed before being eaten, to remove dirt, germs, and insecticides. Soaking fruit or vegetables too long destroys part of their mineral and vitamin content.

Children, especially an only child, need adult attention, and the approval and understanding of the parents. Even busy parents should try to give a youngster some period in which he can have their whole attention, to listen to his triumphs and his troubles, if any.
